GRADUATE COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

Some course numbers have been changed in an effort to accommodate current and future curriculum and program development. The following course descriptions include reference numbers for courses for which numbers have changed during the past two years. Courses that are not currently available include the notation, “Publication date to be announced.” Students may choose the Bible version of their choice but the Graduate School of Theology prefers the English Standard Version.

Bible (BIB)—Biblical Studies Division

BIB 5013 Historical Approach to Hermeneutics (3 credits)
This historical treatment of biblical hermeneutics is designed to give students a perspective on the different ways in which the Bible has been interpreted in many times and cultures. Students will gain an appreciation of the role of dominant philosophical systems in providing a context for hermeneutical theory and insight into the presuppositions of the modern Western approach to hermeneutics. In addition, students will learn new criteria for judging inappropriate contemporary approaches to hermeneutics.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, History, New Testament, Old Testament.
Materials required:
- Historical Approach to Hermeneutics, Graduate Study Guide by George R. Stotts; Biblical Interpretation Then and Now: Contemporary Hermeneutics in the Light of the Early Church by David S. Dockery; A Short History of the Interpretation of the Bible by Robert M. Grant and David Tracy; Biblical Interpretation in the Early Church by Katfried Froehlich; Biblical Interpretation: Past and Present by Gerald Bray; and The Holy Bible.

BIB 5033 The Bible as Literature: Theory and Methodology (3 credits)
One of the blessings of the literary approach to biblical study has been the recognition that the Bible contains many different genres or types of literature, including poetry, narratives, proverbs, visionary literature, and other genres. The literary features of these different genres are presented in this course, which provides students the opportunity to apply the techniques of literary criticism to these various genres of biblical texts.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, New Testament, Old Testament.

BIB 5543 Foundations of Biblical Language (3 credits)
This course provides a basic understanding of the structure and elements of biblical Hebrew and biblical Greek for those students who are not pursuing formal studies in either language. It will enable the student to develop advanced skills in using biblical language research tools (lexicons, concordances, grammars, wordbooks, etc.) in order to deepen their understanding of the biblical texts. This, in turn, will further enhance and advance the student’s ministry to others.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, Biblical Language.
Materials required:
- Foundations of Biblical Language, Graduate Study Guide by James E. Richardson; Hebrew for the Rest of Us by Lee Fields; English Grammar to Ace New Testament Greek by Samuel Lamerson; Greek for the Rest of Us by William D. Mounce; English Grammar to Ace Biblical Hebrew by Miles V. Van Pelt; and The Holy Bible.

BIB 5813/BIB 5823 Directed Reading and Research: Biblical Studies (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

BIB 6293 Hermeneutics: God’s Message and Its Meaning (3 credits)
In this course, general rules that apply to grammatical-historical interpretation will be presented and contrasted with other common systems of hermeneutics. Students are challenged to develop a system of biblical exegesis that adheres to basic rules of hermeneutics. To accomplish this, the student is required to demonstrate these principles in the exposition of selected passages. A secondary goal is to acquaint the student with unique factors that affect interpretation of major literature genres in the Bible. To achieve this, the student will practice interpreting within the genres of historical narrative, poetry, parables, and epistles.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: Core course for all graduate degree programs.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, New Testament, Old Testament.
Materials required:

BIB 6903 Practicum: Biblical Studies (3 credits)
Through a self-designed biblical studies teaching project, the student is given opportunities for reflection on his or her theology and practice of ministry within a typical ministry environment, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a mission trip, or a Christian school.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible.
See course description for MIN 6903 for additional details.

BIB 6926 Thesis: Biblical Studies (6 credits)
This course requires field-based research after identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of biblical studies or selection of a topic in the field of biblical studies for further research.
BIB 783/BIB 7823 Specialized Reading and Research: Biblical Studies (3 credits)

See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

Bible New Testament (BNT)—Biblical Studies Division

BNT 5053 Colossians and Philippians (3 credits)

This course is designed to aid students in developing a personal method of Bible study. The primary steps in exegesis will be presented by using an example a study of the Epistle to the Colossians. Students will practice applying these same principles of exegetical methodology to the Epistle to the Philippians, analyzing Philippians from seven perspectives: semantics, syntax, immediate context, book context, theological (Bible) context, cultural/historical context, and literary context. After completing this exegetical analysis, students will be given an opportunity to contextualize their findings into a commentary and sermon.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, New Testament. NOTE: This course will not fulfill requirements for biblical language credit. See BNT 7053 for biblical language credit.

Materials required:
Colossians and Philippians: An Exegetical Methodology, Graduate Study Guide by Carl B. Gibbs; Interpreting the Pauline Epistles by Thomas R. Schreiner; Principles and Practices of Greek Exegesis by John D. Grassmick; Toward an Exegetical Theology by Walter C. Kaiser; and The Holy Bible.

BNT 5093 Letter to the Galatians (3 credits)

Galatians is one of the most influential and difficult of Paul’s letters. This course creates opportunities to delve into the social, cultural, and religious backgrounds that gave rise to the Galatian controversy, to understand the opponents’ “gospel,” and to hear anew the significance of Paul’s response. The student will be enabled to search out ways in which this letter remains a “word-on-target” for the life and vision of twenty-first-century churches. Particular attention is given to the rhetorical and social-scientific dimensions of the text.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, New Testament.

Materials required:
Exegesis of the Letter to the Galatians, Graduate Study Guide by David A. deSilva; Obeying the Truth: Paul’s Ethics in Galatians by John Barclay; New Testament Interpretation through Rhetorical Criticism by George A. Kennedy; Grace in Galatia: A Commentary on Paul’s Letter to the Galatians by Ben Witherington III; and The Holy Bible.

BNT 5103 Letter to the Hebrews (3 credits)

The Epistle to the Hebrews stands as a monument to early Christian reflection on the significance of the work of Jesus, His benefits, and the response of faith in the transition from the law of Moses to the gospel of grace. Students enrolled in this course will learn the exegetical techniques of rhetorical and cultural-anthropological analysis and apply them to a close reading of Hebrews.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, New Testament. NOTE: This course will not fulfill requirements for biblical language credit. See BNT 7103 for biblical language credit.

Materials required:

BNT 5183 Acts as History and Theology (3 credits)

Because ancient historical monographs typically illustrated lessons for life through the history they recounted, this course approaches the New Testament Book of Acts as both history and theology. The course will thus focus on both the history of earliest Christianity found in Acts and the Early Church and its leaders as models for subsequent Christian life and witness.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Bible, History, New Testament, Theology.

Materials required:

BNT 5573 Graduate Greek I (3 credits)

This course presents a study of Koine Greek grammar and syntax with emphasis on reading and understanding the Greek text of both the New Testament and extrabiblical Koine literature. This study will help students to appreciate the Koine Greek of the New Testament and to read Greek as it was written by Greek authors.

Materials required:
Reading and Research: Biblical Greek, Graduate Study Guide by John D. Grassmick; Interpreting the Pauline Epistles by Thomas R. Schreiner; Principles and Practices of Greek Exegesis by John D. Grassmick; Toward an Exegetical Theology by Walter C. Kaiser; and The Holy Bible. while avoiding the English syntactical approach. Requires supervised examinations that include translation of selected New Testament and/or extrabiblical passage(s).

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:

Supplemental materials:

---

BNT 5583 Graduate Greek II

(3 credits)

This course presents an ongoing study of Koiné Greek that includes recognition and use of Koiné Greek grammar and syntax that are necessary to translation and exegesis of the Greek text of the New Testament and extrabiblical writings. Requires supervised examinations that include translation of New Testament and extrabiblical passages.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
BNT 5573 Graduate Greek I or its equivalent required.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:

Supplemental materials:

BNT 6043 Pneumatology in Lucan Literature

(3 credits)

Historically, the exegesis of Luke–Acts has tended to neglect the study of Luke’s particular pneumatology. When Luke’s pneumatology has been treated, the tendency has been to interpret it through the categories of Pauline theology. This course seeks to analyze the pneumatology of Luke strictly in terms of Luke’s own theological agenda and approach as these are revealed in Luke–Acts. The larger hermeneutical and theological consequences of this theme are explored in depth with a view to demonstrating the essentially Lucan character of modern Pentecostal pneumatology.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
Core course for all graduate degree programs.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:

---

BNT 6203 Backgrounds to the New Testament: Cultural and Historical Contexts

(3 credits)

This course introduces the student to the major political, social, religious, and historical factors that shaped the culture in which Christ ministered and the church was formed. The student will study these factors chronologically from the intertestamental period until the closure of the biblical canon. Throughout the course, emphasis is placed on the exegetical applications of the cultural-historical context in interpreting the New Testament.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
None.

---

BNT 6303 The Gospels

(3 credits)

This course enables the student to create sound expositions of the Gospels that give proper consideration to their historical, literary, and theological aspects. Through exposure to the general field of gospel interpretation (instruction about the specific principles that should be applied to the biblical texts), the student is given opportunities to produce expositions that integrate the knowledge and skills acquired in the course and that reflect the correct exegesis of the original texts. The thorough examination of the texts of the four Gospels will equip the student to deal with portrayals of Jesus that differ from the view presented by the gospel writers.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
BIB 5033 Bible as Literature, BIB 6293 Hermeneutics, or equivalent course required.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:

---

BNT 6403 Pauline Prison Epistles

(3 credits)

This course provides an exposition of significant passages and themes found in the letters of Paul to the Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon. It will focus on both practical and theological emphases and implications for the churches and believers of the first century as they strove to become more like Christ and expand His kingdom. Implications will be drawn for the twenty-first century church as the principles taught by Paul are applied to the contemporary context. The course will require the student to examine the text in detail, including grammar, and syntax as well as the study of critical terms.

Publication date to be announced.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:
To be announced.

BNT 6673 Intermediate Greek (Graduate Greek III) (3 credits)

This course provides the student with a review of Greek grammar and an in-depth study of Greek syntax. It is designed to equip the student with translational and exegetical skills for in-depth study and analysis of the Greek New Testament. The student is given opportunity to practice the use of the major linguistic tools, create word studies, and translate selected passages of the Greek New Testament. The student is also introduced to leading software that will assist him or her in the research of the Greek New Testament. Requires supervised examinations that include translation of New Testament and/or extrabiblical passage(s).

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
BNT 5573 Graduate Greek I and BNT 5583 Graduate Greek II or six equivalent credits of graduate or undergraduate Greek language with a minimum grade average of 80% (or its equivalent).

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:
To be announced.

BNT 6903 Practicum: New Testament Studies (3 credits)

Through a self-designed New Testament studies preaching project, the student is given opportunities for reflection on his or her theology and practice of ministry within a typical ministry environment, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a mission trip, or a Christian school.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

See course description for MIN 6903 for additional details.

BNT 6926 Thesis: New Testament Studies (6 credits)

This course requires field-based research after identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of New Testament studies or selection of a topic in the field of New Testament studies for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

See course description for RES 6926 for additional details.

BNT 7103 Greek Exegesis of the Letter to the Hebrews (3 credits)

The Epistle to the Hebrews stands as a monument to early Christian reflection on the significance of the work of Jesus, His benefits, and the response of faith. The author’s use of the Old Testament will be a major focus of the course, with the author’s call to adhere to the gospel of grace rather than the Law of Moses. The successful completion of this course will require direct translation from the original language into modern English. A consideration of grammar, syntax, and context must be reflected in the translation and application of the text.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
BNT 5573 Graduate Greek I, BNT 5583 Graduate Greek II, and BNT 6673 Intermediate Greek, or nine equivalent credits of graduate or undergraduate Greek language with a minimum grade average of 80% (or its equivalent); and BIB 5033 Bible as Literature, BIB 6293 Hermeneutics, or equivalent required.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:
To be announced.

BNT 7503 Romans: An Exegetical Analysis (3 credits)

This course gives the student opportunity to explore, through expository and theological study of the original Greek text, Paul’s most important letter. The course provides an overview of such inquiries as authorship, date, purpose, circumstances of the writing of the letter, and the major themes of Pauline thought. The theology of the letter and its application to men and women living in the twenty-first century are emphasized. The successful completion of this course will require direct... translation from the original language into modern English. A consideration of grammar, syntax, and context must be reflected in the translation and application of the text.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
BNT 5573 Graduate Greek I, BNT 5583 Graduate Greek II, and BNT 6673 Intermediate Greek, or nine equivalent credits of graduate or undergraduate Greek language with a minimum grade average of 80% (or its equivalent); and BIB 5933 Bible as Literature, BIB 6293 Hermeneutics, or equivalent course required.

Requirements this course will fulfill:

Materials required:

BNT 7513 – I Corinthians: An Exegetical Analysis

In 1 Corinthians, Paul addresses several significant issues faced by the church at Corinth, covering a wide range of practical and theological topics. The letter contains the most detailed presentation of Paul's teaching on the Holy Spirit. This course provides an exegetical study of key passages in the book related to these issues. The successful completion of this course will require direct translation from the original language into modern English. A consideration of grammar, syntax, and context must be reflected in the translation and application of the text.

Bible Old Testament (BOT)—Biblical Studies Division

BOT 5113 Science and the Bible (3 credits)

This course explores the role of Christianity in the history of natural science and the impact of science on Christian beliefs. It relates scientific discoveries to the general revelation of God, referred to in this study guide as the book of nature, and to the special revelation of God, The Holy Bible. Recent scientific discoveries pointing to an intelligent Designer who created the universe are also considered. The role of reason in producing faith and confirming the revelation of God is examined and an appeal to apologetic witness is made.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
None.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Bible, Old Testament.

Materials required:
Science and the Bible, Graduate Study Guide by Franklin E. Niles; The Soul of Science by Nancy Pearcey and Charles Thaxton; The Fingerprint of God by Hugh Ross; The Creator of the Cosmos by Hugh Ross; Christian Belief in a Postmodern World: The Full Wealth of Conviction by Diogenes Allen; In the Beginning God: Modern Science and the Christian Doctrine of Creation by John David Weaver; Darwin on Trial by Phillip E. Johnson; and The Holy Bible.

BOT 5143 Isaiah: Major Themes (3 credits)

This course addresses major themes in the Book of Isaiah and gives students the opportunity to utilize the exegetical process of biblical study in developing articles, lessons, sermons, or sermon series based on these themes, including applications to contemporary life in their own cultural context. Using selected passages from Isaiah, the course presents the four general themes of Judah’s sinfulness, God’s judgment for sin, Judah’s hope of restoration, and Judah’s messianic expectations.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
None.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Bible, Old Testament. NOTE: This course will not fulfill requirements for biblical language credit. See BOT 7143 for biblical language credit.

Materials required:
Major Themes of Isaiah: An Exegetical Approach, Graduate Study Guide by Steven
BOT 5173 Hosea and Amos (3 credits)
This course moves chapter by chapter through the writings of two minor prophets, Hosea and Amos, to help students understand their messages to their people. The course also gives students the opportunity to utilize the exegetical process of biblical study in developing articles, lessons, sermons, or sermon series based on the major themes of these two books, including applications to contemporary life in their own cultural context.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Bible, Old Testament. See BOT 7153 for biblical language credit.

Materials required:

BOT 5173 Poetry and Proverb: The Psalms and Wisdom Literature (3 credits)
The primary focus of this course is on Psalms, Song of Solomon, and Proverbs. Ecclesiastes is presented as a culminating masterpiece of poetry and proverb. The course follows a hermeneutical approach and deals with methods of interpreting with biblical poetry and proverbs. The student is led to see the Bible as a continuously poetic and proverbial book, with poetry and proverbs embedded throughout, especially in the New Testament.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: BIB 5933 Bible as Literature recommended.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Bible, Old Testament.

Materials required:
Poetry and Proverb: Psalms and Wisdom Literature, Graduate Study Guide by Leland Ryken; The Wisdom of Proverbs, Job, and Ecclesiastes: An Introduction to Wisdom Literature by Derek Kidner; Words of Delight by Leland Ryken; How to Read the Psalms by Tremper Longman III; and The Holy Bible.

BOT 5333 Origins: Christian Faith and Natural Science (3 credits)
This course presents an overview of the foundational issues of the long-standing creation-evolution debate. The interdisciplinary approach (philosophy, natural science, and biblical interpretation) includes analyzing arguments provided by all three theistic camps (young earth creationists, old earth creationists, and evolutionary creationists.) Students are challenged to synthesize and articulate a personal perspective on creation-evolution.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Bible, Old Testament.

Materials required:
Origins: Christian Faith and Natural Science, Graduate Study Guide by Stephen A. Badger and Michael G. Tenneson; Christian Perspectives on Origins by Stephen Badger and Mike Tenneson; A Science and Religion Primer by Heidi A. Campbell and Heather Looy; The Language of God: A Scientist Presents Evidence for Belief by Francis S. Collins; Beyond the Firmament: Understanding Science and the Theology of Creation by Gordon J. Glover; Three Views on Creation and Evolution by J. P. Moreland and John Mark Reynolds; and The Holy Bible.

BOT 5813/BOT 5823 Directed Reading and Research: Old Testament Studies (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

BOT 5823 The Pentateuch: Critical Issues (3 credits)
This course approaches the five books of Moses in light of their historical backgrounds and literary presentation of theological themes. The course treats the doctrines of divine origin, original sin, salvation, the Abrahamic and Sinai covenants, holiness, the ceremonial laws, and the value of the rest of the laws of Moses to modern believers. Various approaches to exegesis of the Pentateuch will be analyzed including major higher critical methods, the documentary hypothesis, and the relation of the Pentateuch to contemporary pagan literature.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Bible, Old Testament.

Materials required:

BOT 6903 Practicum: Old Testament Studies (3 credits)
Through a self-designed Old Testament studies preaching project, the student is given opportunities for reflection on his or her theology and practice of ministry within a typical ministry environment, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a mission trip, or a Christian school.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Old Testament.

See course description for MIN 6903 for additional details.

BOT 6926 Thesis: Old Testament Studies (6 credits)
This course requires field-based research after identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of Old Testament studies or selection of a topic in the field of Old Testament studies for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Bible, Old Testament, Research.

See course description for RES 6926 for additional details.

This course presents a systematic examination of the dynamics present in Christian organizations with a view to understanding the relationship between organizational structures and cultural context. The dynamics of organizational life will be explored in light of intentional mission and ministry.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: LDR 5013 Foundations for Christian Leadership or equivalent course required.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Leadership.

Materials required: Dynamics of Christian Organizations, Graduate Study Guide by Byron D. Klaus and Roger Heuser; The Five Most Important Questions: Self-Assessment Tool: Participant Workbook by Peter F. Drucker; Basic Budgeting for Churches: A Complete Guide by Jack A. Henry; Natural Church Development by Christian Schwarz; Managing the Congregation: Building Effective Systems to Serve People by Norman Shawchuck and Roger Heuser; and The Holy Bible.

LDR 6903 Practicum:

Leadership (3 credits)

Through a self-designed leadership project, the student is given opportunities to reflect on, develop, and utilize decision-making strategies, interpersonal leadership relationships, and other aspects of ministerial administration within a typical ministry environment, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a mission trip, or a Christian school.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Leadership.

See course description for MIN 6903 for additional details.

LDR 6926 Thesis:

Leadership (6 credits)

This course requires field-based research after identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian leadership or selection of a topic relating to Christian leadership for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Leadership, Research.

See course description for RES 6926 for additional details.

LDR 7813/LDR 7823 Specialized Reading and Research:

Leadership (3 credits)

See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

LDR 8966 Dissertation Writing and Defense:

Leadership (6 credits)

This course requires identification of a project of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian leadership or selection of a topic relating to Christian leadership for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Leadership, Research.

See course description for RES 8966 for additional details.
MIN 5013 Preaching to Change Lives (3 credits)
This course on the methodology of sermon preparation guides the student in integrating exegesis of a passage of Scripture with literary analysis, rhetoric, dramatic technique, and analysis of the contemporary world for the purpose of preaching powerful and effective sermons that are true to the biblical text.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: BIB 6293 Hermeneutics or equivalent course recommended.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries.
Materials required: Preaching to Change Lives, Graduate Study Guide by Reg Grant; The Power Sermon by Reg Grant and John Reed; Public Speaking: A Handbook for Christians by Duane Litfin; Between Two Worlds: The Art of Preaching in the Twentieth Century by John R. W. Stott; Telling Stories to Touch the Heart by Reg Grant and John Reed; Called and Empowered ed. by Murry Dempster, Byron D. Klaus and Douglas Petersen; How to Get Your Point Across in 30 Seconds or Less by Milo O. Frank; and The Holy Bible.

MIN 5203 Foundations for Pastoral Theology (3 credits)
This course presents an integrated approach to both the character and role of the pastor of a local congregation. Emphasis is placed on the divine call and the biblical qualifications of a pastor in relation to the development of a personal biblical theology of pastoral ministry. Pastoral expectations and responsibilities are examined with specific attention given to the preparation of special services, including water baptism, communion, weddings, funerals, and dedications.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries, Theology.
Materials required: Foundations for Pastoral Theology, Graduate Study Guide by Dean L. Grabill; Pastoral Theology: Essentials of Ministry by Thomas C. Oden; The Pentecostal Pastor: A Mandate for the 21st Century edited by Thomas E. Trask, Wayde I. Goodall, and Zenas J. Bicket; Escape from Church, Inc.: The Return of the Pastor-Shepherd by E. Glenn Wagner; and The Holy Bible.

MIN 5263 Marriage and Family Counseling (3 credits)
This course is designed to help the student acquire an understanding of the issues in marriage and family counseling and be able to apply this understanding in pastoral ministry to married couples in the local church. Multiple tools and techniques for managing marriage and family counseling issues are presented. Special attention is given to history taking, problem assessment, and therapeutic interventions.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries.

MIN 5273 Developing a Christian Worldview (3 credits)
This course addresses the connection between a person’s worldview and his or her belief system and lifestyle. Students are encouraged to develop a Christian worldview in which they respond to the basic issues of life according to the intentions and actions of God. Emphasis is placed on a Christian worldview that begins with a transformation of heart and mind and leads to a passion to reach the nations both individuals and societies. Students examine the dynamics of spiritual formation in developing a Christian worldview and the important role the church fills in preparing people to fulfill God’s plan.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Leadership, Ministries, Missions, Theology.
Materials required: Developing a Christian Worldview, Graduate Study Guide by William P. Kuert; Think Like Jesus: Make the Right Decision Every Time by George Barna; The Dynamics of Spiritual Formation by Mel Lawrenz; Thinking Like a Christian: Understanding and Living a Biblical Worldview: Teaching Textbook by David Noebel; Tell Me a Story: The Life-Shaping Power of Our Stories by Daniel Taylor; and The Holy Bible.

MIN 5813/MIN 5823 Directed Reading and Research: Ministerial Studies (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

MIN 6233 Ministerial Ethics: The Bible Confronts a Changing World (3 credits)
This course emphasizes biblical teaching as the foundation for all major ethical issues regardless of culture. It is designed to enable the ministerial student to remain culturally relevant, yet true to the Bible, when confronting international cultures and variant teachings. Multiple critical issues that are common in a changing culture will be examined in depth, based on the conviction of the central role of the Bible, even in a contemporary setting.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: Core course for Doctor of Ministry degree programs.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Leadership, Ministries.

MIN 6503 Relationships for a Lifetime of Ministry (3 credits)
This course presents an in-depth look at contributing factors that lead to departure from ministry.
It requires students to evaluate the place of relationships as a key building block of sustainability. Consideration is given to insights shared by contributing writers from multiple disciplines for maximizing ministry effectiveness through relationships with God, parishioners, denominational leadership, local church boards, the family, and the community. Special attention is given to the assumption that long-term tenure facilitates ministerial success.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: Core course for Doctor of Ministry degree programs.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries.

Materials required:
- Relationships for a Lifetime of Ministry, Graduate Study Guide; Work with Me: The 8 Blind Spots Between Men and Women in Business by Barbara Annis and John Gray; Interpersonal Relationship Skills For Ministers edited by Jeanine Bozeman and Argile Smith; Resilient Ministry: What Pastors Told Us About Surviving and Thriving by Tasha Chapman Burns and Donald Guthrie; Developing Leaders for the Church: Biblical Principles of Leadership Empowerment by Lattis Campbell; Men are from Mars, Women are from Venus: The Classic Guide to Understanding the Opposite Sex by John Gray; From a Father's Heart by Evan Horton; Relationships: A Mess Worth Making by Timothy Lane and Paul David Tripp; Forgive & Love Again: Healing Wounded Relationships by John W. Nieder and Thomas M. Thompson; If Only I Could Relate to the People I'm Related To by Stan Toler; Dangerous Calling: Confronting the Unique Challenges of Pastoral Ministry by Paul David Tripp; and The Holy Bible.

MIN 6513 Spiritual Formation: Principles of Christian Discipleship (3 credits)

This course is designed to renew and intensify the spiritual formation of the student. Emphasis is placed on strengthening and building on previously developed biblical spiritual methods for growth and maturity in relationship to God and others. The course structure leads the student to progressively renew and strengthen focus and dependency on Christ alone through Christ-centered character development. Assignments are based on practical application of spiritual basics, such as Scripture knowledge, prayer and biblical meditation, devotional times, worship, time spent in solitude with God, and the sharing of faith in Christ. The course prepares the student for the highest levels of practical ministry, empowered by the Holy Spirit with a fresh commitment to the Lord Jesus Christ.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: Core course for Doctor of Ministry degree programs.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries.

Materials required:

MIN 6903 Practicum: Ministries (3 credits)

This field-based experience provides a supervised learning experience in an actual Christian ministry setting. Through a self-designed ministry project, the student is given opportunities to apply proper hermeneutical and homiletical principles to preparation and delivery of textual and expository sermons and to reflect on his or her theology and practice of ministry within a typical ministry environment. The project must be pre-approved by a Global University mentor and overseen by an approved supervisor. The practicum, however, is adaptable enough to be contextualized to the venue and needs of the student. The project may be fulfilled in a variety of settings, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a mission trip, or a Christian school.

NOTE: See course numbers 6903 preceded by the three-alpha-character designation for discipline-specific practicum enrollment options (BIB, BNT, BOT, EDU, LDR, MIS, RES, THE). Also see section on “Practicum Types.”

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: A student must be within 12 credits of completing all other course work for the respective degree before enrolling in MIN 6903 or discipline-specific Practicum.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries.

Materials required:

MIN 6926 Thesis: Ministerial Studies (6 credits)

This course requires identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of ministerial studies or selection of a topic relating to ministerial studies for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries, Research.

See course description for RES 6926 for additional details.

MIN 7813/MIN 7823 Specialized Reading and Research: Ministerial Studies (3 credits)

See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

MIN 8966 Dissertation Writing and Defense: Ministerial Studies (6 credits)

This course requires identification of a project of a practical nature relating to some phase of ministerial studies or selection of a topic relating to ministerial studies for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries, Research.

See course description for RES 8966 for additional details.
Missions (MIS)—Ministerial Studies Division

MIS 5013 The Biblical Theology of Missions (3 credits)
This course is a survey of the biblical themes of Missio Dei and the kingdom of God, which are seen as the unifying concepts of the Old and New Testaments. In the context of the biblical foundation for socio-humanitarian ministry, students will be challenged to respond personally to the biblical theology of missions and to evaluate the church’s contemporary involvement in the Missio Dei.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
None.
Requirements this course will fulfill:
Leadership, Missions.

Materials required:

MIS 5033 Cultural Anthropology (3 credits)
In addition to a presentation of the basic principles and categories of cultural anthropology, special attention is given to the role of applied anthropology in the missionary task and the anthropological principles most relevant to missionary practice.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
None.
Requirements this course will fulfill:
Leadership, Missions.

Materials required:
Cultural Anthropology, Graduate Study Guide by Larry L. Niemeyer; Anthropological Insights for Missionaries by Paul Hiebert; Ministering Cross-Culturally by Sherwood Lingenfelter and Marvin Meyers; Anthropology for Christian Witness by Charles Kraft; Missiology and the Social Sciences by Gary Corwin and Edward Rommen; and The Holy Bible.

MIS 5053 Missions from the Two-Thirds World: Issues and Models for the Emergent Church (3 credits)
This course focuses on the developmental issues faced by missions from the two-thirds world. The mission of the people of God is presented with a scope far beyond that often envisioned in the historic quest for an indigenous church. The operation of a missions organization and the role of laypersons in contemporary missions are also emphasized. Students are challenged to activate their churches to fulfill the Great Commission.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
MIS 5033 Cultural Anthropology or equivalent course required.
Requirements this course will fulfill:
Missions.

Materials required:

MIS 5053 Trends and Current Issues in Missions (3 credits)
This course brings together insights on current missiological issues from assigned reading, collateral reading, and ministry experience with a view toward the appropriate application of significant principles. Current trends and issues are treated in the light of both the biblical background for missions and the present realities of today’s world context. Attention is given to worldwide issues with a focus on issues of significance to the non-Western missionary.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
None.
Requirements this course will fulfill:
Missions.

Materials required:

MIS 5103 Paradigms for Pentecostal Missions (3 credits)
This course provides a critical analysis of the role of the baptism in the Holy Spirit in the work of world missions today. It explores the historical roots of the doctrine of Spirit-baptism as taught in the classical Pentecostal denominations as well as the contemporary understandings of the baptism in the Holy Spirit as understood by Pentecostals, charismatics, Third Wavers, and non-Pentecostal evangelicals. Biblical and theological issues are also examined by looking into the Book of Acts to determine how Luke, the author, viewed Spirit-baptism, and how he expected his readers to view it. Each student is also challenged to consider the role of Spirit-baptism in his or her own life and ministry.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
None.
Requirements this course will fulfill:
Missions.

Materials required:

MIS 5813/MIS 5823 Directed Reading and Research:
Missions (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.
MIS 6023 Strategies for Cross-Cultural Ministry (3 credits)

This course is designed to enable the cross-cultural minister to appraise the socio-political and religious setting of any given culture in order to develop the strategies that are needed to establish an indigenous church in that culture. In relation to this goal, the course deals with the topics of church planting, cross-cultural communications, power encounters through spiritual warfare, theological training by extension, the multicultural congregation, adjustments of the missionary family, and the role of the church that sends workers into cross-cultural ministry.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Leadership, Ministries, Missions.

Materials required:
Strategies for Cross-Cultural Ministry, Graduate Study Guide by Gary Luther Royer;
Communicating Christ Cross-Culturally: An Introduction to Missionary Communication by David J. Hesselong; Called and Empowered: Global Mission in Pentecostal Perspective by Murray Dempster, Byron D. Klaus, and Douglas Petersen; Understanding Spiritual Power: A Forgotten Dimension of Cross-Cultural Mission and Ministry by Marguerite G. Kraft;
Strategies for Passing On the Bread: Models for Fulfilling Missions at Home and Abroad by Gary Luther Royer;
Developing Leaders through Theological Education by Extension: Case Studies from Africa by Stewart G. Snook;
Unveiling Islam: An Insider's Look at Muslim Life and Beliefs by Ergun and Emir Caner and The Holy Bible.

MIS 6043 History of the Expansion of Christianity (3 credits)

This is a survey of the expansion of Christianity from the first century to the present. Special attention is given to the role of forces at work in secular history and within the church that contributed to the different stages of missionary effort of the church. Students will be given an opportunity to write an essay on the history of missions in their own country, place that history in the context of global missions history, and discuss the role of secular world trends and forces-at-work within the church that were relevant to the evangelization of their country.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Other Requirements this course will fulfill: History, Ministries, Missions.

Materials required:

MIS 6073 Islam and Animism: A Christian Perspective (3 credits)

This course presents an overview of the primary beliefs characteristic of those with an animistic or Islamic cultural worldview. These beliefs are compared and contrasted with the biblical Pentecostal worldview. The primary goal of the course is to enable the student to formulate a biblical philosophy of ministry to address the spiritual issues of each of these groups. A secondary goal is to challenge the student to devise a strategy for training Christians to understand, relate to, and evangelize people from these backgrounds.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Ministries, Missions.

Materials required:
Islam and Animism: A Christian Perspective, Graduate Study Guide by Lazarus M. Chakwera; Muslims, Magic and the Kingdom: Church Planting Among Folk Muslims by Rick Love; Responding to Muslims by Harry Morin; Gods of Power: A Study of the Beliefs and Practices of Animists by Philip M. Steyne; Muslims and Christians on the Emmaus Road edited by J. Dudley Woodberry; and The Holy Bible.

MIS 6093 Practicum: Missions (3 credits)

Through a self-designed missions or evangelistic outreach project, the student is given opportunities for reflection on his or her theology and practice of ministry within a typical mission environment in a setting, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a missions trip, or a Christian school.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Missions.

See course description for MIN 6903 for additional details.

MIS 6926 Thesis: Missions (6 credits)

This course requires identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian missions or selection of a topic relating to Christian missions for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Missions, Research.

See course description for RES 6926 for additional details.

MIS 7813/MIS 7823 Specialized Reading and Research: Missions (3 credits)

See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

MIS 8966 Dissertation Writing and Defense: Missions (6 credits)

This course requires identification of a project of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian missions or selection of a topic relating to Christian missions for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Missions, Research.

See course description for RES 8966 for additional details.
Research (RES)—General Education Division

RES 5023 Graduate Research and Writing: Principles and Practice (3 credits)
This course is an introductory course that ensures the student gains the writing tools needed to be successful in future graduate courses through the practice of high-level written expression. Emphasis is placed on utilizing critical thinking skills, analyzing and synthesizing information gained through research, and presenting the results in an academically acceptable format.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: Core course for all graduate degree programs.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Education, Research.

Materials required: Graduate Research and Writing: Principles and Practice, Graduate Study Guide by Marvin Gilbert and James E. Richardson; Writing for Academic Success: A Postgraduate Guide by Gail Craswell; Global University Graduate Studies Form and Style Guide; The Elements of Style by William Strunk Jr. and E. B. White; A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations by Kate L. Turabian; and Practical Research: Planning and Design by Paul D. Leedy and Jeanne Ellis Ormrod and The Holy Bible.

RES 5813/RES 5823 Directed Reading and Research (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

RES 6903 Practicum: Research (3 credits)
Through a self-designed research project, the student is given opportunities for reflection on his or her theology and practice of ministry within a typical ministry environment in a setting, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a mission trip, or a Christian school.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Education, Research.

See course description for MIN 6903 for additional details.

RES 6913 Research Methodology (3 credits)
This course is an advanced graduate research course that provides a background and analysis of the interpretation for educational and ministerial research. It is designed to provide in-depth study of the process of conducting textual, qualitative, and quantitative research. The course focuses on an examination of the major methodological traditions of these approaches to research as well as the distinctions between them. Students will be guided by mentors to develop a formal research proposal.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: RES 5023 Graduate Research and Writing: Principles and Practice or equivalent course required. RES 6913 or equivalent course required prior to enrolling in a thesis.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Education, Research.

Materials required: Research Methodology, Graduate Study Guide by Dennis Jameson, Gary L. Seevers Jr., and George R. Stotts; Global University Graduate Studies Form and Style Guide; A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations by Kate L. Turabian; and Practical Research: Planning and Design by Paul D. Leedy and Jeanne Ellis Ormrod and The Holy Bible.

RES 6926 Graduate Thesis/Dissertation: Purpose, Process, and Product (6 credits)
This course is an applied research project culminating in a final written thesis based on independent academic and field-based research after identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian ministry or selection of a topic in Christian ministry for further research. It requires students to research, organize, analyze, critically evaluate, interpret, propose a solution, and present a written dissertation project based on results and analysis of research.

NOTE: See course numbers 8956 preceded by the three-alpha-character designation for discipline-specific doctoral dissertation project enrollment options (BIB, BNT, BOT, EDU, LDR, MIN, MIS, THE).

Publication date to be announced.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: RES 6913 Research Methodology or equivalent course is required. A student must be within 12 credits of completing all other course work for the respective degree before enrolling in RES 6926 or discipline-specific thesis.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Research.

NOTE: See course numbers 6926 preceded by the three-alpha-character designation for discipline-specific thesis enrollment options (BIB, BNT, BOT, EDU, LDR, MIN, MIS, THE).

RES 7813/RES 7893 Specialized Reading and Research (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

RES 8953 Dissertation Research and Proposal (3 credits)
This course guides the student through the research process RES 5013 See RES 6913.

RES 8966 Dissertation Project Writing and Defense (6 credits)
This course is an applied research project culminating in a final written doctoral dissertation project based on independent academic and field-based research after identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian ministry or selection of a topic in Christian ministry for further research. It requires students to research, organize, analyze, critically evaluate, interpret, propose a solution, and present a written dissertation project based on results and analysis of research.

Materials required: Dissertation Project, Graduate Study Guide by James E Richardson; Global University Graduate Studies Form and Style Guide; A Manual for Writers of Research Papers, Theses, and Dissertations by Kate L. Turabian; and Practical Research: Planning and Design by Paul D. Leedy and Jeanne Ellis Ormrod; other materials to be announced.
Theology (THE)—Biblical Studies Division

THE 5013 Current Trends in International Theology (3 credits)
This course provides a critical analysis of significant theological perspectives and personalities as witnessed in recent decades. It explores the influences of culture on theology, the function of the Bible in contemporary theologies, the role of theology in the hermeneutical task, and the significance of these factors for doing theology in the student’s own cultural context. Current international trends in theology are surveyed from an evangelical perspective. These include such contextualized theologies as Latin American liberation theology, black theology (a reference to the theological perspectives of blacks in both Africa and North America), green (environmental) theology, and feminist theology, as well as informal theologies such as the positive confession and prosperity gospel.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Missions, Theology.

THE 5813/THE 5823 Directed Reading and Research: Theology (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.

THE 6083 Contemporary Issues in Pneumatology (3 credits)
This course will help the student assess traditional Pentecostal doctrinal positions in light of contemporary ideologies that are expressed in writings of the twenty-first century. Issues that will be examined from a biblical perspective include: expanding the definition of the Baptism of the Holy Spirit, ecumenism, and the eschatological impact on pneumatology.

Publication date to be announced.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Theology.
Materials required: To be announced.

THE 6093 Theology of the Holy Spirit in the Old Testament (3 credits)
This course presents an in-depth examination of a comprehensive list of passages that deal specifically with the Holy Spirit and His work as revealed in the Old Testament. A conscious effort is made to present a biblical (rather than systematic) theology, though at times it will be thematic. Special care is taken to reveal the continuity of teaching on the Holy Spirit in the Old and New Testaments.

Publication date to be announced.
Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: Old Testament, Theology.

This course addresses a comprehensive list of traditional Pentecostal teachings on the Holy Spirit as revealed in the New Testament. Particular attention is given to the writings of Luke, John, and Paul, providing a clear presentation of the differences in their approach and concerns regarding the one theme they present. Special care is taken to reveal the continuity in teaching concerning the Holy Spirit in the Old and New Testaments.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation: None.
Requirements this course will fulfill: New Testament, Theology.

THE 6126 See THE 6926.

THE 6903 Practicum: Theology (3 credits)
Through a self-designed theology project, the student is given opportunities for reflection on his or her theology and practice of ministry within a typical ministry environment in a setting, such as a local church, a parachurch ministry, a mission trip, or a Christian school.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Theology.
See course description for MIN 6903 for additional details.

THE 6926 Thesis: Theology (6 credits)
This course requires identification of a problem of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian theology or selection of a topic relating to Christian theology for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill: Research, Theology.
See course description for RES 6926 for additional details.

THE 7813/THE 7823 Specialized Reading and Research: Theology (3 credits)
See “Specialized Studies—All Divisions” at the end of this section of “Graduate Course Descriptions” for details.
THE 8966 Dissertation Writing and Defense: Theology (6 credits)

This course requires identification of a project of a practical nature relating to some phase of Christian theology or selection of a topic relating to Christian theology for further research.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Research, Theology.

See course description for RES 8966 for additional details.

Specialized Studies—All Divisions

5813/5823 Directed Reading and Research: [Discipline-specific] (3 credits)

This directed reading/research approach allows a student to design and complete a reading plan in a content area that is of interest to the student, relevant to his or her academic program, and for which an equivalent course is not available for enrollment. All work will be done under the direction of a graduate mentor. The student is required to select readings, design a project based on the readings, and present a proposal detailing the books and other publications to be read and the project to be completed. All proposals must be approved by the mentor and the Dean of the Graduate School of Theology, after which the student will complete the reading project and present a detailed project report.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
A student must complete all core courses before enrolling for a directed reading. Credit for only one directed and/or specialized reading and research enrollment may be applied to a Master of Arts degree; credit for two may be applied to a Master of Divinity degree.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Determined by the field of study and indicated by the alpha prefix for the course number (BIB, BNT, BOT, EDU, LDR, MIN, MIS, RES, THE).

Materials required:
To be selected by the student with approval of the mentor and Dean.

7813/7823 Specialized Reading and Research: [Discipline-specific] (3 credits)

This specialized reading/research approach requires a student to design and complete a plan that will enable him or her to fulfill specialized study requirements for the completion of a degree program or project under the supervision of a mentor and with approval of the Dean of the Graduate School of Theology. Readings and research will meet a specific individual academic need and will not replace an existing course. The student must fulfill reading and research requirements that are academically equivalent to or greater than that for an individual course at the same level of studies. Assignment submissions will include book reviews, annotated bibliographies, and reflective essays. Methodologies will reflect graduate-level academic performance that applies knowledge at the higher levels of the cognitive and affective domains.

Prerequisite or sequence recommendation:
A student must complete all core courses for the respective degree program before enrolling for a specialized reading. Credit for only one directed and/or specialized reading and research enrollment may be applied to a Master of Arts degree; credit for two may be applied to a Master of Divinity degree.

A student must complete at least two specialized reading and research courses in the area of his or her specialization to fulfill Doctor of Ministry degree requirements.

Requirements this course will fulfill:
Determined by the field of study and indicated by the alpha prefix for the course number (BIB, BNT, BOT, EDU, LDR, MIN, MIS, RES, THE).

Materials required:
To be selected by student with approval of the mentor and Dean or Director of Doctoral Studies, the area of his or her specialization to fulfill Doctor of Ministry degree requirements.
